

Enjoying the work of my RCSA Director role, I decided to dedicate myself to running for RCSA President. Spending over 15 hours tabling, I won the election by a comfortable margin and also enjoyed hearing the thoughts of residents in a more personal style. The new position of RCSA President came with an entirely different kind of work. Rather than focusing directly on passion projects, my work entailed soft skills related to organizing the RCSA Executive Board. I centralized my vision as President upon supporting our representatives and staff to great effect. For the first time in at least 4 years, we retained all our Executive Board and the majority of our General Council representatives. I enjoyed learning about how to support others in tangible ways and in particular in the realm of mental health. Looking forward to working on a medical staff team, skills related to collaboration and support within that draining environment will be indispensable.
